

Hatshepsut was a female pharaoh who was born in Ancient Egypt. She was famous because she was the first female pharaoh who ruled Ancient Egypt. Hatshepsut was the fifth pharaoh of the 18th dynasty during the period known as the new kingdom. She was born circa 1508 B.C. Hatshepsut was an unusual pharaoh because she wanted to reinvent her image by being portrayed as a male pharaoh, with a beard and large muscles in statues and paintings. Hatshepsut was successful in warfare early in her reign and was the pharaoh who brought peace to Egypt. She didn't believe in war and traded with other countries so Egypt became more wealthy. She had many monuments. She died of bone cancer and suffered from diabetes and arthritis. Hatshepsut's tomb was discovered in 1903 in the valley of the king's. Inside was coffins of mummified geese and decaying coffins of two women lying side by side.

Ancient Egypt

My dearest family I miss you very much Egypt has been so much fun. Never in a thousand years did I think I'd be here with my entire class. Quarrying the rock is hard. You have to work so much to do this and also there was no modern technology back in the days. Once we have a large block we put it on a sleigh and take it to the pyramid site. Also to make the sleigh move we have to make the sand wet. The pyramids are amazing out of this world. How did they build it to be so tall? you would never believe how tall it actually is. The construction site of the pyramids are also so cool people can do so much without modern day technology so much.
